Abstract

A method for adaptively learning is described that effectively and efficiently uses large amounts of data. Specifically, in one example, a scheme is described for 5 determining whether to use data to adaptively learn parameters, or whether to discard the data. In this way, convergent data learning is possible.